Lient. Gen. Grant has assumed the immediate command of the Army of the Protomac, and its entire re-organisation is officially announced. The number of Army Corpe is reduced from five to three; the ist and 3d being merged in the 2d, 5th and 6th, but in separate divisions, and authorised to preserve their badges and adithrictive marks. Gen. Hancock commands the 2d; Gen. Warren, the 5th and Gen. Sedgwick the 6th, while Gen. Meade retains the command of the whole under Lieut. Gen. Grant. The reduction of the corps was deemed necessary for many reasons; but mainly, we think, to avert the evils of inordinate ambittion. With five corps commanders, all encouraged by precedent to aspire to the chief command of the Army of the Potomac, there has been a sad want of that unity that an adventure of the corps commanders. He commanders all encouraged by precedent to aspire to the chief command of the Army of the Potomac, there has been a sad want of that unity that a didlity which are so essential to military success. It is not denied now that corps commanders exhausted themselves to strip Gen. Meade of his laurelass dearly won at Gettyaburg, and not less than three in turn have directly or indirectly claimed the honor of that decisive victory.

Gen. Grant will very soon be at the head of the largest army ever thrown into Virginia. The strength of his force is not diagnised, nor need it be. The three corps in the Army of the Potomac will each be fully 40,000 strong; Burnside's corps will be 50,000; and to these may be added, as immediately under Grant, and prepared to ecoperate in his grand movement, the troops under Gen. This Great Central Pair to be held in Philadelphia in June, for the benefit of the Sanitary Commission, should enlist the interest and co-operation of every friend of the solider and his sacred cause. We feel that we cannot too earnestly arge the claims of this Commission upon the people. To it the entire armies are mainly look for that care and the sum and the sum and the sum and the commission of the solider are indispensable to the completely systematized that it can use contributions to the very best end and with the greatest economy, while individual efforts of the sick and wounded; and every philanthroto and soliders are always expensive and often utterly fruitless. The Pair to be held in Philadelphia will be one of great magnitude, and every man and woman should contribute as best suits his or her means. The farmer should send his flour or other products of his farm; the artisan should send specimens of his art; the mechanics should contribute the fruits of his mechanics about contribute the fruits of his mechanics about contribute in market or acceptable to the suffering; and thus aboutd all make common cause to enlarge the operations and usefulness of this great labor of love. When this cruel war shall be over, thousands upon thousands when have braved the foes of the Republic, will ever cherials in grateful remembrance with the great achievements of war, the no less emobiling victories of peace, which reared the standard of mercy upon every sanguinary field, and ministered to friend and foe in the hour of sorrow and death.

The logislatere did nothing of interest during last week. The Democratic Convention interrupted the session on Wednesday last, and an adjournment was caused until Wednesday evening. None of the important bills have been reported yet.

The bounty bill has passed and bren approved by the Governor, I tanthorizes the levying of taxes to pay all subscription bounty funds; and legalizes any system adopted by the people of the districts for the collection of said taxes.

The military claim bill still sleep in the Committee on Federal Relations; but an early report is promised.

Some of our Democratic friends complain that such men as Mr. Stable, of Adams, and Mr. Myers, of Beford, are sent as delegates to the National Convention, while much abler men, such as Mr. Stable, of Bedford, are cornered off on the State Committee. We think it a mistake than to complain. The convention acted wisely, in our judgment, in deciding that it won't take half the brains to morninate a candidate for the Democracy that it will to carry the election for him.

The BLACK SOLDERS in PLORIDA.—Col. Hallowell, a young citizen of Philadelphia, and a veleran in the war, commanded the Masachasetts 54th, which behaved so splendidly in the desperate battle of Oluste, or Ocum Pond as it is termed in the official dispatch of Beautragand. An officer writes: "Before going both the test was double-quicked for a mile, and, as they went in, General Beymour said to Colonel Hallowell, 'The day is lost; you must go in and save the corpse.' He did go in and save it, checked the enemy, held the field, and was the very hat to leave, and control the retreat." Another correspondent says: "I hear loud praises of the 54th Masachasets thi United States, and lat North Carolina (colored). They went up at the double quick when our advance was nearly destroyed, and saved the left from being turned, in which case the whole force would have been annihisted. The conduct of the troops is represented to have been uniformly admirable. The colored troops did nighty. Colonel Hallowell, in an address to his regiment, told them he could not sind fasht with a single officer or man. This supplies a want long feth by our country and retail dealers. Mr. Gelveichs has been activaly engaged in the greecy business for the last twenty years, being fully cunversant with the rise and full in goods, and purchasing alone for cash is enabled to complete with city merchants. To his large and extensive stock of Fish, Balt, Cheese, Hame, Coffee, Sugar, Syrups, &c., we would call the attention of retail dealers to examine before purchasing in the city or eleewhere.
