A movement is being made in Kantucky and Tennesses to the same end, and no long period will chapse before they toe will be ranged under the bannier of freedom. Men of all partice appear to be opening their eyes to the conviction that truth must prevail, that the sentiment of the people cannot be resisted, and that that sentiment in nearly unnanimous against Stavery and will shortly be completely so. In Congress the constitutional amendment for the abolition of Slavery requires but six votes to pass it of the necessary two-thirfs. And this strong seatiment of our people for the abolition of Slavery, with the avowed conviction that such abolition will settle the war, and all vexed questions between the States hereafter has not been without its effect in rubeldom itself. It was revealed clearly to the southern people for the first time by the result of the fall elections, and since then its effect has been apparent in the despondent tone of the press and speeches of prominent men. "Strays show which way the wind blows," and for the first time in the history of the rebellion a possibility of its failure is admitted. In 1881 politicians claimed to make cabinate for their own selfide-cade. They had labored to gain this victory, and claimated by the confidence of the warmed their reward. We once heard the wearied and dispusted President declares, when office-hunters were crowding about hisdoor, and treason was rouning riot to Charleston and even threatening the very capital, that he seemed like a man who was renting out roome in one end of a mansion while the flames were devoaring it at the other. Now, however, the offices are filled—few if any changes can be required, and the unminity of the Nation in charging Nr. Liaucolu with the Executive functions for another term, place him above the demands of small place-hunters. He was elected to save a Republic—to complete a holy work to which he had been faithful, and not to dispense that the political whales either great or small.

We faithfully reflect the united sentiments of the sincero and carnest inen who matained Mr. Liaucolu *re-ciection, when we may that the country wants a cabinet appointed solely with reference to its ability, fieldly and efficiency in the great way to be performed by the administration. A cabinet is wanted that will, first of all, he a min on the leading measure essential to the successful prosecution and and a singenerally discordant, had no forgerful of the proprieties of honorable station as to fing their dirty lines in the face of the Nation. THE PROPERTY AMENDMENT TO THE

A resolution proposing an anicomment to the constitution of the United States, by which to abolish slavery throughout the country, is now before congress. That such a resolution will sooner or later be adopted, thereby referring this most vexed and vexations of all public questions to the States themselves, there can be no doubt. The triumph of the Union party in the electations of October for and November last, secured this beyond a peradyenteric and the opposition for witholding their support from the resolution at this time-can only effect a short postponement of the Issue.
