Since the Nation was plunged into the foundate gired by the assassination of vuncerated Chief Magistrate, we have been supposed to the policy of a prerument in dealing with its militance of the policy of a prerument in dealing with its militance of the policy of the property of the policy of a prerument in dealing with its militance of the policy of the p But such in out the mission of the distribut journalist. Passions and rewstamuts, however deere and relentless, must fulle away. Sooner or later calm reason, and liberal enlightened judgment must assert their supremacy. The patriotism of the Nation, so long and so sorely tried, will inth higher and holier duttes than hiosedictabed by vengennee: and justice will reach its grandest triumph as a resented government pruclaims in power and permanency but generous piagnatismity chat will go hand in hand with its terribic possiblement.

Just abw the spirit of vengeance is rife throughout the land. It greets a sancwery step. It comes from almost every voice. It comes from almost every voice. It handers from the pulpid. It is applanded in popular assemblages. All breath it for it it. The assessin's hand has striken the President down, and the demon of treason shoeted its appalling trimsph over the no-bet victim. Just when his windom and particular had made grery knee to how and every tongue confess—just when in the fulness of a Nation slove, he was murdered; and it was treason/plata erved the arms and directed the swift inatument of death. For such a critice the Kylion has no name, and no penalty is ample for atomics. It has dried up the generous fountains of the popular heart. It has called forth the curse of vengeancesthroughout the loyal States, and every untimely grave, every withered field and évery shadowed circles, seems to join in the demand for bloody retribution.

—Lat us pause in the midst of this minigied sorrow and resentients, and look well at the abeliant of a vanquished fice. Not less than three million traitors have given belying hand to the discolation and bereavements of this cruel, wanton war. Judged by every moral standard they are smurderen-removaless fratriciales. From their fugitive chief to the humblest in their malk—soldier and eithers, finite and summally and government, are alles sothors were the summal for all properties and throughout he world with belligerout rights. Necessity made it law. For four years we warred as with a foreign foe, and at last the God of battles and of justice has earl trevel the legions of the treacherous nurper, and given decisive victory to Liberty and Law.

The swood has how performed its cruel wark. Our Nationality in preserved. Its foundation is unablaken, but its imposing columns are not unscathed. It has hru-ken joints, dismanthed ornaments, and gaping sears for time and wisdom to heal. It has States without percument, without lay, without representation, and with an estranged people, to gather into the folks of the Republic again. They were causines but yesterday—to-day they are an estranged people, to gainer into the folds of the Republic again. They were cannies but yesterday—to-day they are integral parts of our common country. His haunts by day were lockible and beyond comprehension. His would sally out at night with from three to five bunderd men, and by early dawn his well trained thieves would be the meekest of farmers or laborers in pursuance of their daily vocations at their homes, and thair leader would be secreted in some fastness.

rilla robbery and mander have been practised within a few miles of the border of Penngytrania. But if "the mills of the gods grind slowly, they grind exceeding line," and the day has come at last when the petted and honored gerrella must fig even from the places which ever afforded him a welcome refuge. By the surrender of Lee and the flight of Davis and his companions in crime, the war wan practically ended, and slowler rebbery cased to be protected by the fliney pricted of a robel commission and the conception of belligaepent rights.
