As April rais of smiles and te My beart to young again.

The west winds blow, and singing
I hear the gind streams run.
The windows of my son! I throw
Wide open to the sun.

No longer forward nor bakind I look in hope and fear; But, grateful, inke the good I find, The best of now and here.

I plow so more a desert land, To harrest weed and tare; The manus droping from God's hand Bebukes my painful care.

I break my pligrim staff, I tay Aside the tolling our; The singel conglet so far away, I welcome at my door.

The aim of spring may never play.

Not less shall manly deed and word Rebake an age of wrong; The graves flowers that wreath the sw Make not the blade less strong.

But multing hands whall learn to heal, To build as to destroy; Nor less my heart for others feel That I the more onjoy.

All as God wills, who wisely heeds To give or to withhold. And knoweth more of all my seeds Than all my prayers have told.

Enough that blessings undeserved Have marked my erring track— That wheresoe'er my feet have swerved, His chastening turned me back— That more and more a Providence Of love is understood,

Making the springs of time Sweet with eternal good-

That death seems but a covered way Which opens into light. Whereis no blinded child can stray Beyond the Father's sight— That care and trial seem at last, Through Memory's sugget air, Like monutain ranges overpast, In purple distance fair—

That all the jarring notes of life Seem blending in a pasim, And all the angles of its strife filow rounding into calm.

And so the shadows fall spart, And so the west winds play; And all the windows of my heart I spen to the day.
