A party of rioters broke open an undertaker's store and stole a coffin, on which they inscribed: "Lincoln's Draft Died Monday, July 18th." They then carried the coffin around the garcets.—Some of the newsboys mingled with the crowd around the Park, crying extras, announcing "Execution of Horace Greely." "The boax was largely cheared by the rabble.

The Yankees, oncouraged by the success of their perseverance at Vicksburg and Port Hudson, will probably, in the language of Lincoln, continue to "keep pegging away" at Charleston. We nope that Beauregard will not give them time to burrow in the ground like moles, but will give them a teach of cold steel which will make them seek shelter in their gunboa's on the water. On Friday last, the following dispatch from Beauregard was received in Richmond:
