"We're Glorious in the Dust." INSPIRED TO "GLORIOUS IN THE DUST."

"The o'er, the fearful struggle o'er, The bloody contest past, And hearts oppressed with anxious care, Tarok peacefully at last.

Our country! our loved Southern land, Through many a fight and bid For thee, for home and liberty, Are numbered with the dead.

Long shall we mourn for those whose lives We offered up in vain, We miss them in our vacant homes, Nor can we from tears refrain.

Our great, our good, our honored LEE, Virginia's pride and boast, The noblest of the noble men, That led our Southern host.

On Southern women—who can tell, What their affection wrought; What words of comfort, words of truth, Their loving lips have taught.

En-ope's proud nations stood amazed, They saw, they know not how, That through those fatal years we proved, The strength of Southern steel.

she called to a girl who sat in one corner, "Hannah, Hannah, come get my muffs."

"Who shall commence, and about what will our stories be?" "I propose Ella Jones will favor us with one, no matter what it is about, whether ghosts, fairies, hobgoblins, or scoundrel people like myself for instance," said Minnie.

"The girls smiled good humoredly and drew their chairs closer as Ella's sweet voice said: "Girls, what do you say if I tell you about my first ball?"

"Oh, yes, Ella, do," cried all. And merry, roguish Ella, assuming an air of mock gravity, told the following:

"Well, girls, about two years ago, it was decided that my worthy self should be present at a grand ball, in honor of some great event. (I declare I forget what it was.)

"I declare, sis," as I, mortified and humbled, sought to retreat as quickly as possible, "you look fine; and if you only succeed in displaying your charms and graces as well at the ball as you have done before the mirror, you will create a sensation."

"I don't want to create a sensation, or oron go to the ball," said I, peevishly. "Oh! dear, what will I do?—you will be forever making fun of me!" and commenced to cry bitterly.

"Pooh! sis, nonsense; you are not surely offended at my thoughtless words? Why, I gave you credit for more good sense.—Come, now," he said, smoothing my hair and arranging my disordered dress, "dry your eyes and let us be off, for the carriage is at the door."

"Never was a poor mortal so dazzled as myself when I entered the ball-room and beheld the flames and feathers, flowers and laces, bright flashing eyes and bewitching ringlets, beauteous maidens and stately ladies fitting and fitting with the elegant gentlemen whose brilliant wit was enough to dazzle wiser heads than mine—will contributing to render perfect the fairy-like magnificence of the scene.

"Oh! if you had only seen one of my partners—full six feet tall and slender; his head was covered with a profusion of short curls—altogether, he reminded me of a cocoanut tree which is very high, while its branches and leaves are all on top. However, he danced well, and that was all I cared for.

"There was one lady among the throng who engaged my particular attention, and who, in my opinion, was the belle of the ball. She was a charming looking creature; her self-willed little ringlets had a most bewitching way of falling gracefully over her polished brow, and when she smiled and displayed her pearly teeth, she was irresistible.

"Everything went on finely for some time, when, by an unlucky accident, a gentleman tripped on my dress, and tore it most unceremoniously. Of course, I had to retire and get it mended. I was not long engaged in this occupation, when I heard voices in the adjoining room. Stimulated as I was, it was impossible for me not to hear what was said.

"How could you be so careless, Hannah, as to arrange my dress in such a manner?—Surely, you must have foreseen it would be disgraced. Really, it is too bad to think that because of your carelessness my ringlets were fast falling in the ball room!"

"Hinglets falling?" thought I; "gracious! what does the woman mean?" But before I had time to consider, the voice continued: "What happened? I would have done if such a thing had happened? I would have the laugh of the city; and all because you did not perform your work right. If ever such a thing happens again, you will be instantly dismissed from my service! Come, arrange my curls carefully, and put a little rouge on my cheeks; the night has taken all my color, unless what little I put on previous to leaving home. And, while I am here, it would be well to fix my teeth, they feel loose."

"Gracious! what a beauty you must be!" said I, scarcely able to restrain my mirth. "The door of her room opened, and she returned to the ball. In a few moments I heard some person saying, in an angry tone: "She'll dismiss me, will she? Ha! she knows too well I know her deceit and hypocrisy, and she holds it her interest to be very civil to me. How nice it would sound in the ears of her numerous admirers that Miss ———, the beauty, the belle, wears false teeth and curls; paints and powders; has an artificial eye, and worst of all, only a pretended right to the wealth she is supposed to possess! Yes, just let her send me away, if she dares, and she will suffer the consequences. I know my power, and mean to use it."

"Ha, ha, my fair dame of the artificial charms," thought I, "you are in no enviable situation—in a servant's power, who may speak of you when she thinks fit. Better be assailed with the features God gave you, than be in perpetual fear of being found decked in borrowed plumes."

"As I was returning to the ball room, I saw the beauty's waiting maid, whose solicitude I had just listened to. "Mirth and music whirled away the fleeting hours, and I never had enjoyed myself better. The lady on whom I conferred the title of belle was still triumphant. Really, girls, I never took such a fancy to any person. I was continually praising her, and declared no one ever saw such teeth, curls and complexion."

"Well, when about to go home my belle started the drawing room. Looking around owned, the prouder they were; and this has produced hostility between the mass of the white and the negroes. The outrages are mostly from non-slaveholding whites against the negro, and from the negro upon the non-slaveholding whites.

The negro will vote with the late master, whom he does not hate, rather than with the non-slaveholding white, whom he does hate. Universal suffrage would create another war, not against us, but a war of races.

Another thing. This Government is the freest and best on the earth, and I feel sure is destined to last; but to secure this, we must create and purify the ballot. For many years contended at the South that slavery was a political weakness, but others said it was a political strength; they thought we gained three-fifths the representation by it; I contended that we lost two-fifths.

If we had no slaves we should have had twice certain mental, moral, or such other qualifications as might be determined by an enlightened public judgment.

Ma. Editor.—For some time past a number of the rank-lights among the U. S. in Christ's Church, have complained of the publication of certain proceedings of their general Conference, lately in session at Western College, perhaps in Iowa.

Why was this? Do they not desire that their own people here, as well as the public, should be informed of what their highest church judicatory has said and done, in regard to one of the most important questions agitating the public mind? Do they feel mortified to find such sentiments as those embodied in the long string of resolutions of the Conference brought to light here, where they shock the sensibilities of the majority of the people? Who is it that had a friend or relative in the army of the Confederacy, that would not have his feelings wounded, yes, his indignation stirred, at the sentiments contained in those resolutions, as well as the language of the Bishop, at the time in the chair, when the announcement was made to the Conference of the capture of Pres't Davis?

This Bishop (Starkwood) has travelled thro' every part of this Valley and enjoyed the kindness and hospitality of hundreds of people outside of his own denomination. Will his conduct, on the occasion referred to, make him a welcome guest, when next he asks the shelter of their roofs or a seat at their hearth-stones? Again, Mr. Editor, the president man of their denomination has, for long years, been a citizen of Augusta, he married in a highly respectable connection, and has reared a most interesting family, that commands the esteem, as he did the entire respect of all who knew him, up to the arrival of this General Conference. This was the case, as all who read this article will bear the writer witness, especially outside of his own denomination. He was often invited to fill the pulpits of Presbyterians, Methodists and Lutherans, and commanded their sympathy and respect. Was his course at this General Conference calculated to retain either? It is said, he was spoken to on the subject by some friend, and intimated he had no recollections to make, that he would do the same thing again, under the same circumstances. Will this declaration make him more friends in the Valley of Virginia? Whilst most persons thought his sympathies were with the North in our late conflict, yet they gave him credit for the quiet and prudent course he pursued. All who were acquainted with the creed of the denomination, knew they were practical abolitionists, and opposed to slavery. As a general thing, very few of that denomination were found in the Southern army, and rarely were prayers ever heard from any of their clergy or lay men, for the success of the South, in her death struggle, yet who was prepared to find this denomination at such a time, giving utterance to the sentiment referred to; or asserting that broad Black Republican doctrine which Connecticut has so emphatically denounced, that this negro is the equal of the white man. This General Conference did, say so, and endorsed it by a unanimous vote of eighty eyes to none in the negative, for the five did not vote no, or ask to be excused from voting, and, therefore, in accordance with parliamentary usage, in clerical and civil bodies, must be counted in the affirmative. All members of that denomination in Va., ought to be gratified at the publication of these proceedings, and if they cannot endorse them, let each individual Church hold meetings and denounce them. This is clearly their duty. Two or three trifling errors appeared in the proceedings as published. It was General, and not annual Conference, and hence so much more important, because meeting but once in four years, and this was the best opportunity it had, since the war commenced, of giving expression to their opinions, and such opinions! It convened at Western College, Iowa, instead of Dayton, Ohio, and the extract of the proceedings was from the Western Religious Telescope, instead of Telegraph, and published at Dayton, Ohio, by Shuey & Sowers. This Mr. Shuey was formerly from Augusta, but was no where referred to as a delegate to the Conference from the Valley.

After remarking that the "Democratic party finds its all position untenable, and is counting its cards," he commenced with saying that the States are in the Union which is whole and indivisible. Individuals tried to carry them out, but did not succeed, as a man may try to cut his own throat and be prevented by the bystanders; and you cannot say he cut his throat because he tried to do it.

Individuals may commit treason and be punished, but a large number of individuals cannot constitute a rebellion and be punished as traitors. Some States tried to get out of the Union and we opposed it honestly, because we believed it to be wrong; and we have succeeded in putting down the rebellion. The power of those persons who made the attempt has been crushed, and now we must restore the States to normal, and is counting its cards. The State institutions are prostrated, and they must be taken up and adjusted to the progress of events. This cannot be done in a moment. We are making very rapid progress, so rapid I cannot sometimes realize it; it appears like a dream.

Some States tried to get out of the Union and we opposed it honestly, because we believed it to be wrong; and we have succeeded in putting down the rebellion. The power of those persons who made the attempt has been crushed, and now we must restore the States to normal, and is counting its cards. The State institutions are prostrated, and they must be taken up and adjusted to the progress of events. This cannot be done in a moment. We are making very rapid progress, so rapid I cannot sometimes realize it; it appears like a dream.

Individuals may commit treason and be punished, but a large number of individuals cannot constitute a rebellion and be punished as traitors. STAUNTON SPECTATOR.

LOCAL.

A SERVICEABLE COAT.

Many years since, an old German citizen of Pendleton county, when about to lead his fair 'frow' to the Hymeneal altar, purchased a broad-cloth coat in which he was married. His wife pre- ceded him with many children, among whom were eight sons, every one of whom were married in the same coat in which their father married their mother. The youngest of the eight sons, had seven sons, every one of whom were married in the same wedding coat, and after the youngest son of the seven, or the youngest grandson of the original owner of the coat, had led his blushing bride to the altar in his venerable Grandfather's fashion- able wedding coat, he sold it for the sum of $10. What has become of the coat since it was sold, we have not been advised, but suppose that some one is keeping it for the purpose of getting married in it. As there seems to be a peculiar matrimonial virtue in this remarkable coat, old bachelors would, doubtless, give a high price for it. If it has brass buttons on it, it would better not be brought to this place, for some vigilant Federal soldier, justly guarding the honor and dignity of the Government, would out them off "like the twinkling of an eye." Soldier, spare that coat, touch not a single button.

SENSIBLE TALK.

The Lynchburg Republican says that "it is an axiom that business comes to no one unthought." The man who would sit in his counting-room with folded arms and look for wealth to choose him to lavish its favors upon, instead of his more active competitors, would be considered little short of an idiot or a lunatic. If you wish then to find business, you must look for it; if you wish to keep the business you already have, you must labor to that end.—In other words, as advertising is the best, and almost the only medium through which you can reach the ear of the community at large, you must advertise. The logic which leads to this conclusion is simple, inevitable, irresistible. The man who really wants to trade with you will show you more favors than one who is indifferent to your patronage. This is the people's argument in a nutshell; and it is sound reasoning. Therefore, if you really wish to do business, advertise your advantages, your goods, your business. Show the public that you are energetically in earnest, and your work will be more than half accom- plished."

Circuit Court.

The Session of the Circuit Court, of Augusta, Judge Lucas P. Thompson presiding, commenced on Wednesday last. The Court has been engaged in the trial, exclusively, of criminal cases. Wm. Grove and Ralph Marshall indicted for horse-stealing, were acquitted. There were three in- dictments against James F. Huffman for horse- stealing, who was sentenced to the penitentiary for eight years. The Grand Jury made numerous other indictments for felony which are yet to be tried. The Grand Jury adjourned on Satur- day until Wednesday, to-morrow. The Court will be occupied the whole term in disposing of the criminal docket which is an unusually heavy one. Crime has been rife in the land, and has generally ridden stolen horses.

PAINFUL ACCIDENT.

William, aged seven or eight years, son of Mr. H. Fisher, near Patterson's Mill, on Middle river, had his right arm terribly crushed in a cane mill, a week or two ago. He was siding his father in grinding cane when the accident occurred. His hand was caught in the cogs of the mill and the horse going at a rapid pace could not be stopped until the arm was drawn to within three inches of the elbow joint. Immediate amputation was found necessary to save life. The operation was performed by Dr. J. B. Bell, of Spring Hill. The patient is doing well.

GOOD APPLES.

We have been presented by Mr. Jewell, in the ante-room of the Post Office, with some of the most delicious apples we ever ate. Not wishing to tax the credulity of our readers, we will not mention the size, farther than to say that the size corresponded with the quality. As seeing is believing, and eating is proof positive, we would advise persons to call upon Jewell and purchase some of these really luscious apples. He can also supply you with stationery, periodicals, ink, newspapers, and many other articles, on good terms.

TOWN PUMPS.

We are again constrained to call attention to the condition of the Town Pump at the corner of Augusta and Beverly Streets. Since we last called attention to it, Mr. H. H. Peck tried his hand at fixing it, and flattered himself that he had done so, but it is again in want of repair, and we wish the proper authorities to engage some one who knows how to fix it right. In selling Goods, he still maintains the contest bravely and heroically; but the pump question he surrenders uncondi- tionally.

PROCEEDS OF THE SUPPER.

The Ladies of the Presbyterian Church realized $755.00 net from the elegant Supper given by them, on Tuesday night last, for the purpose of obtaining the means for defraying the expenses of putting a new roof on the house occupied by their Pastor. If you wish to have anything done, do it yourself; but if you wish to have it well done, get the ladies to do it.

A YOUNG MAN KILLED.

We have been informed that, on Monday night, the 20th ult., Robert Liggett, a son of Philip Liggett, of Harrisonburg, was shot and killed by a Mr. Eastham, near Keesletown, in Rockingham County. Mr. Robert Liggett was about 20 years of age.

THOROUGH-BRED CATTLE.

Mr. Achilles Rodgers, (distinguished before the war for rearing the finest kind of cattle,) and other enterprising farmers of Greenbrier county have formed a company, with $10,000 capital stock, for the purpose of introducing into that fine grazing county thorough-bred cattle.

APPLES.

We have been presented by our friend, Mr. Addison McCutchen, with some large and elegant apples. We hope that his orchard may ever be fruitful, and that he may grow in prosperity to the end of his days.

The communications signed "K" and "Franklin" will appear in our next. To insure inser- tion, communications must be presented by Wednesday of the previous week.

VALLEY TURNPIKE.

The following exhibits the amounts received and expended by the Valley Turnpike Company from June 1st, 1865, to September 30th, 1865: Amount of tolls received from June 1, $178 59 Exp. for repairs, same time, $252 13 Paid gate keepers salaries, 400 93 " office salaries, 425 53 " printing, &c., 7 00 " United States taxes, 37 98 Advanced to contractors, bridge- builders, &c., 1548 50 $3077 96

Indebtedness of the company. $280 37

The Benefit of Advertising. Mr. — writes us: "Sir, in the month of August I sold $700 worth of goods, and did not advertise. I advertised in September, and sold $15 to the newspaper, and my sales are $1,800 to September, 15th. Loss $10, gain $300."—Char- lotteville Chronicle.

MARRIED.

On the 21st inst., by the Rev. J. C. Dine, Mr. FRANK CLARK, to Miss MARY E. J. FULLER, all of this place.

On Thursday, the 19th ult., by Rev. J. C. Dine, Mr. JOHN D. SHEETS and Miss FRANCIS D. RAD KNEB, both of Augusta county.

On the same day, by the same, M. DANIEL PLECK- ER, and Miss MARY S. TRAFORD, only daughter of Mr. Harrison Traford of this county.

Review of the Markets.

We have nothing of importance to chronicle since our last. Prices have remained steady, except bacon, which has declined from 1 to 1 1/2c.

Ketch on de Jury. There once lived a man—and I'll not tell his name Who lived in the country with Polly, his dame...

Desire for War. There seems to be in some minds, says the Richmond Republic, an insatiable appetite for war.

WIT AND HUMOR. Heaven sent us women, and France—crinolines. Marrying a lady for her beauty is like eating a bird for its singing.

The Young Men of Virginia. Under the above caption the Richmond Commercial Bulletin, of the 18th of September, had a good article, from which the following is an extract:
