TWILIGHT MOANS.

The vigorous man has sunk to rest... The weary man has fallen to sleep...

SPEECH OF HON. J. P. BENJAMIN of Louisiana, delivered in the U. S. Senate, May 22, 1860.

Mr. BENJAMIN. Mr. President, when we met here in December the public mind was deeply stirred...

Next he said that seventeen Democratic States of this Union, and all his brother Democratic Senators who did not agree with him, were disunionists...

Mr. President, let me say that I should be surprised to have at all exaggerated, in this statement, what the honorable Senator from Illinois thought proper to say in relation to resolutions involving purely constitutional and political principles...

accordance with each other, should meet and should agree upon the phrasing of the resolutions that they were disposed to support...

Now, Mr. President, these resolutions being before us, the honorable Senator from Illinois, [Mr. Douglas] the other day—I am sorry that I do not see him in his seat; I should have waited for him...

More than half of the Senator's speech was devoted to the perfectly idle and unnecessary task of proving that those principles which he now asserts to be the true constitutional principles under which the Territories of the United States are governed...

The next proposition of the honorable Senator from Illinois was, that he was the embodiment of the Democratic party, and that all who dissented from this modest proposition were rebels...

Now, Mr. President, let me say that I should be surprised to have at all exaggerated, in this statement, what the honorable Senator from Illinois thought proper to say in relation to resolutions involving purely constitutional and political principles...

I should like to see the Senator either or not in this instant defense. I appeal to the Senate whether or not this is the true position of the Democratic party...

deny that there is the last approach to truth in his picture. No man here has called upon Congress to force slavery upon an unwilling people...

Now, Mr. President, having shown to you the charges made by the honorable Senator from Illinois against the Democratic States of this Confederacy...

Next, sir, I say that the honorable Senator from Illinois, not satisfied with discussing the constitutional question now before the Senate upon their merits, has thought proper to arraign seventeen Democratic States of this Union as disunionists...

The Yancey platform at Charleston, known as the majority report from the committee on resolutions, in substance and spirit and legal effect, was the same as the Senate caucus resolutions...

So, sir, these resolutions are a Yancey platform, a caucus platform, a disunion platform; and the purpose is, of all who support them and vote for them, after the people of a Territory shall have decided that they do not want slavery...

If it helps him to give nicknames, and he thinks that an appeal to the people of the country will be helped by coining Democratic States and Democratic Senators of being led by a gentleman whom he supposed to be unpopular...

in the Constitution of the United States no prohibition against exercising that power so as to exclude slavery; and they therefore went for excluding slavery from the Territories by the power of Congress...

These were three principles advocated upon this floor. I think I state them correctly. I try to do so, at all events...

Mr. President, this mode of discussing public subjects is a very convenient one—arranging every gentleman sitting here on this side of the Chamber, attacking them in the most offensive of all manners...

More than one-half of the speech of the honorable Senator from Illinois was devoted, as I said before, to the purpose of proving his own consistency, from some period which I do not care to go back to, down to 1854 and 1856...

Now, Mr. President, is it not a subject deserving of some inquiry; will it not naturally suggest itself to the American people to inquire how happens it that a gentleman, who for a long series of years possessed the confidence and admiration of his party...

When, in 1854, the Kansas-Nebraska bill was before me—I must be guilty of some repetition; it is impossible to avoid it when a question has been more or three times—there were three distinct occasions professed upon this floor in relation to the government of the Territories...

the decision of the court, nor for Congress to explain the decision of the court. The court is competent to construe its own decisions, and it is not its duty to explain its decisions to Congress...

Mr. President, I have read that extract at length, that all may see the precise point at which the honorable Senator from Illinois has separated himself from his Democratic brethren and the Democratic party...

It is bad faith when the honorable Senator no longer worships at the shrine of constitutional principle. Professing to agree to leave the matter to the decision of the courts, professing to respect the courts in their decisions, he has gone astray after false gods...

The Senator from Illinois is right; his opinion was clearly expressed at the time. He asserted the power in the Territorial Legislatures. But it was not my opinion that was to govern; it was the opinion of the court on the question of whether a territorial law when the Territory should have passed a law upon the subject...

citizen, it must be carried out in good faith, and all the power of the government—the Army, the Navy, and the Militia—all that we have—must be put to carry the decision into effect in good faith...

We are told that the court has already decided the question. If so, there is an end of the controversy. You agreed to abide by it; I did. If it has decided it, let the decision go into effect; there is an end of it; what are we quarreling about? Will recognition of the Senate give any additional authority to the decision of the Supreme Court of the United States?

Mr. President, I have read that extract at length, that all may see the precise point at which the honorable Senator from Illinois has separated himself from his Democratic brethren and the Democratic party...

Early in the year 1857 the Dred Scott decision was pronounced by the Supreme Court of the United States. If my recollection serves me, the decision had not been printed when we adjourned. A number of us, I think, subscribed together to obtain a number of copies from the public printer, agreeing that he should print such a number as we believed the Senate would be willing to have printed when it reassembled...

Now, in regard to the attempt to get rid of the authority of this decision, not before the court, and that they were either silent, allow me to say this: It is true that when a precise point is before a court, the judgment of the court upon that point is to be that which binds the parties; but do not suppose I will control the question, and these principles which the court has laid down as being the basis upon which it arrives at its conclusions, are declared by the court; they are not their own. Other able, worthy, and just opinions are read, they are not a judge in the courtroom, but they are not a judge in the courtroom.

GREAT SPEECH OF JIMMIE DOUGLAS.

His Defense of Himself and His Position.

There will be clear that the amendment of my colleague was to declare a bill for the admission of a State into the Union that it was the intent of the Congress organizing that Territory to allow the people of the Territory to either to introduce or to assent to slavery, as they wished. This amendment was rejected by the Senate on two grounds. One that it was irrelevant to the bill, and the other that it was only declaratory of what was intended in the Territory bill. The other ground was that it was an act of usurpation for the Congress of the United States to attempt to legislate the meaning of that Territory act, that the question of what its true intent and meaning was, that the courts said was to be determined by the people of the Territory, and any attempt of Congress to explain it was an act of usurpation. I should like to see the view of the Senate. I will ask to have read extracts from the reports of the Senate on the Kansas bill, and I will point out the meaning of the debate, that the amendment would not contain the true meaning of the bill.

traded in the people. After what I read yesterday, and the debate on the Territorial amendment referred to today, no man has an excuse, who was an actor in those scenes for being at a loss as to what my opinion is. It was not my opinion that was at issue; it was the opinion of the Courts upon a question arising out of Territorial law, after the Territorial Legislature had passed laws upon the subject. The Kansas-Nebraska bill refers three questions to the local Courts, to the Territorial Courts, with the right of appeal to the Supreme Court of the United States. When that case shall arise, and the Court shall pronounce judgment, it will be binding on me, on you, and on every good citizen, and must be carried out in good faith, with all the power of that Government, with all the army, navy, militia, all that we have must be exerted to carry the decision into effect, and if it is the opinion of the Court that it is wrong, it is wrong, and it is not for Congress to review the decision, nor for Congress to explain the decision of the Court. The Court is competent to construe its own decisions.

There is no man in Mississippi who is protesting against it; no man in Alabama protesting against it; no man in South Carolina protesting against it; no man in Georgia; none in any of the Southern States of this Union. And we are now to be told that a platform adopted by the unanimous vote of every delegation from every State in the Union, in 1856, is so essential and so rotten four years after it was adopted, that the very States who upheld it then to be up to the party because we insist upon adhering to it now.

that time, was pledged to the proposition of non-intervention by Congress, and the reference of the subject to the people of the Territories. That is the way that I understood it. I have had great difficulty with my political friends in harmonizing upon a platform. I have tendered a Virginia platform of 1847, and they would not take it; I tendered them the Georgia platform of 1851, and they would not take it; I tendered them the Alabama platform of 1850, and they would not take it. I tendered them the letter from Mr. Buchanan's acceptance in 1850, and let them vote for themselves. I tender them Mr. Breckinridge's speech of Lexington, in 1850, and let it construe itself. I would not do any more for a man.

There is no man in Mississippi who is protesting against it; no man in Alabama protesting against it; no man in South Carolina protesting against it; no man in Georgia; none in any of the Southern States of this Union. And we are now to be told that a platform adopted by the unanimous vote of every delegation from every State in the Union, in 1856, is so essential and so rotten four years after it was adopted, that the very States who upheld it then to be up to the party because we insist upon adhering to it now.

slavery to the Territories, when the people did not want it. Overwhelmed unanimously in Baltimore, in 1852, in 1856 he succeeded, perhaps making a virtue of necessity, to submit to the nomination, got up instructions in favor of non-intervention, and succeeded in passing that doctrine into the platform at Cincinnati about very soon he came to the conclusion that this great Democratic party was not competent to preserve and maintain the rights of the South under the Constitution, that it was fonder of them to institute some other organization for the maintenance of Southern rights. That he was conscientious and sincere in his views I do not doubt, but that they lead directly and inevitably to a dissolution of the Union and the foundation of a Southern Confederacy, if carried out, I think is beyond all question.

removing the creed of the party. And of the "proper time" he did precipitate the Cotton States into a revolution, and led them out of the Convention.

He proposed to divide the whole of that Territory into the whole of that Territory. Under the doctrine slavery has been abolished in the Rio Grande to the Gulf of California, and from the Republic of Mexico, northward bound 2400 miles to 200, giving you a degree and more of slave territory than you ever claimed.

accepted the office and title of Judge, and under that title I claim that I have a right to Court and to a place upon points of law until the Court decides that I am wrong.

The programme was carried out to the letter. The first session was held on Monday, June 6th, at 10 o'clock, in the Virginia, Delaware, Kentucky, Missouri, North Carolina, and Maryland. Part of the afternoon, followed him out but they did not stop to divide, and he afterwards returned to the Northern Convention. Was it to keep much and guard the stability frontier for the benefit of the Cotton States? Is Delaware to be received into the Union? Is Delaware to be received into the Union?

But the principle has protected slavery in comparatively northern and western States, where it did not exist, and you can not find any case practice which would justify you in some degree of additional territory from Missouri.

Mr. Douglas made his remarks at length, and in a very able and forcible manner. He argued that the principle of non-intervention, ignoring slavery as a national question, would be the only way to preserve the Union.

upon which he is deciding the case; but whether, in order to reach a result, the court should in giving those reasons for its decision, lay down the principles upon which the result is reached...

BALTIMORE MARKETS. CORRECTED WEEKLY. From the Baltimore American. Jan. 1, 1880.

I do not choose to go into that at any length, nor even to read the syllabus of the decision of the Supreme Court. But what were we divided about in the year 1854, and what was it that the honorable Senator from Illinois agreed to leave to the decision of the Supreme Court of the United States...

ACCOUNTING. BALTIMORE. ALPHABETICALLY. From the Baltimore American. Jan. 1, 1880.

When this case was brought before the Supreme Court of the United States, the question of the power of Congress arose directly—no man has ever denied that the power of Congress to declare that a slave should be free by being carried into the Territories of the United States north of the Missouri compromise line...

JOHN MEAGY'S SKY-LIGHT AMBROTYPE AND DAGUERREAN ROOMS. Cor. of the Diamond, Camb. g. Pa. BISHOP'S Ambrotype and Daguerrean Rooms.

Perhaps the power of governing a Territory belonging to the United States, which has not yet become a State, require the means of self-government, may mean, necessarily, from the facts that it is not within the jurisdiction of any particular State, and is within the power and jurisdiction of the United States...

JOHN MEAGY'S SKY-LIGHT AMBROTYPE AND DAGUERREAN ROOMS. Cor. of the Diamond, Camb. g. Pa. BISHOP'S Ambrotype and Daguerrean Rooms.

Mr. Bishop. What is that? Mr. Benjamin. I am reading the citation from Carter's case, found in the Dred Scott decision. What did the court, in commenting on that— Mr. Pugh. I only want to ask the Senator whether, in the Dred Scott decision, it is not quoted for the purpose of being commented upon...
