The ungallant sentence should have gaite strangled you, eaid Susy.

Present company always excepted, was the reply.

The idea let's have the idea.

Suppose we keep house here, while Mis Susy travels.

Here cried Susy, aghast.

Visions of muddy boots on her par-Visions of muddy boots on her par-lor sofas, cigars in the flower rases, pipes on the centre-tables, spittoons in the best bed room, and frying para in the library, flitted through the young lady's mind; but before she could re-monstrate, Harry said—

Ye.e.s. George was determined to find a book on cockers written by a man, the very next day.

'You boil asparagus, don't you, George?'

Tou boil asparagus, out by Courge;

Yee, here's a tin thing that's long and shallow: I guess that's for such things. And a dirpping pan came forth from the closest. In like a charm as both men. Selected, and water was added and all set on the range.

The mutton next went, on the pudding dish, into the oven.

Come, let's go up stairs again; it's fearfully hot here, said George.

But the dinner?

'Oth that's con nothing to do but to.

Where s the water?
In the hydrant.
What do you wash 'em in?'
Pan, I guess.
Away went Joe on a voyage of investigation, and returned soon with a tin dash full of cold water. The leavings, as Harry termed the remains of Well, come along, said ticorge, taking up the basket.

The fire burned brightly, Jeanie left all in good order, and the prospect was not bad for the amatter cook.

What do you bail them in, teorget Oh, an thing.

But where is it? Sets, I guess.

Sasy would surely have fainted

And a steek; I can cook it, cried Joe.

There's bread and butter, said and steek; I can cook it, cried and steek; I guest that is for most things. And a dripping pan came forth from the closet.

The saparagus fitted in like a charm as both men feel and butter, said derived to make the fire; Hirry cut as both men feel and butter, said all set on the range.

The metton next went, on the pudding dish, into the oven.

Come, let's go up stairs again; it's feel finite occlusion.

George, here's a time the coloset.

Other is go up stairs again; it's feel finite occlusion in the operation.

But the dinner?

Oth, that's got nothing to do but to cook until three o'clock.

Oth, George, here's the potators?

The mitter o'clock.

Smoking, chatting, reading and a little practice on the violin, filled up the potators, with about two gallons of water to the half peek of Marphies, put on the fire.
