

A Mother's Love.

We love the friends our hearts hold dear,
Our sisters and our brothers,
Our mothers and our fathers—
Our dear devoted mothers.
Although this world is dark and drear,
It joyfully we live,
And trust that the day will appear
A home of love and gladness.

A friend may have us long and well,
And sing through joy and sorrow;
But that is not the love of friends,
But greater than the love of friends,
And stronger than all other.
The world is full of love,
But that is not the love of friends.
A mother's love is dearer to us.

A sister loves in friend and love,
And full of tender feeling,
Appeared for the first time,
And often weeping, too,
But still she has a sweet love,
And kinder than all others.
The dearest sweetest love is with
A mother's love.

A brother loves in love and true,
A wife's love no longer,
A wife's devotion greater still,
And her affection stronger,
But still she has a sweet love,
And weaker than any other.
There is no love as true and kind
As a devoted mother.

Their love will last forever, round,
The friends who love us, we know on earth,
In heaven may still last and last;

But still we have a sweet love,
And still we have a sweet love.

The love on earth we need the most,
Is a devoted mother.

Then let us pit our mothers more,
With the love of all the world,
How they watch over us,
And never sleep or dream with slight,
With love, never sleep or dream.

What love, never sleeping bright,
The love of our mothers.

I am waiting now for Thee, Love,
To come to me.

I am waiting now for Thee, Love,
In the evening calm and still,
And my heart is easily moved,
While I sit by the fire,
Love, love, love, love, love,
As I sit here alone, there,
Show me that day again,
Let you and me alone.

Let you and me alone.

I am waiting now for Thee, Love,
To come to me.

I am waiting now for Thee, Love,
With the moon softly shining,
And the stars that shine, keep
Love, love, love, love, love,

Hold me in their embrace,
While the gentle evening appears,
Kiss the forehead on my love.

I am waiting still for thee, love,
Through the night we have, child,
With the stars that shine, keep
Love, love, love, love, love.

Look back over the hills of morning,
I am waiting for thy coming,

Love, love, love, love, love,

Do not hear the echo—

Say, "I am waiting now for Thee, Love."

MARIED BY COMMAND.

Once upon a time there lived near the fort of Marienburg, in Prussia, a father by the name of Reinald. He had two daughters—charming girls. The two daughters were in love, and engaged to be married to two soldiers—one each, of course. Brothers they were, and as drapping fellows as ever Great Frederick could wish to see. It was expected that the regiment in which the brothers served would soon be at a neighboring fort; and that the marriage would take place.

Charlotte, the younger sister, was sitting on the day in question, busily employed in knitting, while watching her father's gaze, when an old gentleman, of noble and majestic carriage, stepped before her. He held a cap in his hand, and wore a military hat and boots, and a great coat with a large cape.

The young shepherdess had never seen this gentleman before, and his presence—the how now—inspired her with a feeling of awe. After regarding her for some time with an arch smile, he thus addressed her:

"What is your name, my pretty maid?" "Charlotte Reinald, at your service," she replied.

"At my service! Well perhaps I may require your service. How old are you, now?"

"Eighteen at Candlemas."

"What is your occupation?"

"I am shepherdess to my parents, who are farmers in the valley."

"Are you not married?"

"Not yet."

"Have you a dowry?"

"I do not know."

"Well, here is something towards one, if you will serve me as you promised to do just now," he said, placing in her unwilling hand a purse containing two hundred florins.

He strange did this proceeding appear to the simple and timid shepherdess, that she was quite alarmed, and, believing this fine gentleman to be a scoundrel, his gold destined to her by degrees. In the meantime the stranger had taken a note-book from his pocket and had written a few words on a sheet of paper, which he carefully sealed.

"To give two hundred florins," said he, "you know only to carry this letter to the fort of Marienburg. If you should know all the goods will tell you paid. You must go to Major Keller, the commander, and give the letter into his hands—Do you understand, and promise to do what I told you?"

Charlotte wished to reply in the negative, but, as if to gain a longer and more difficult time to speak, she kept silent, knowing that to say she was willing, and the stranger concluding that her silence gave assent, left her the letter and related her adventure.

When he was out of sight, the terror-stricken girl ran to her sister, and related her history.

(Signed.) "Kiss Farnham II."

"The king! It was the king! Good Heavens!"

The king himself! Are you not delighted to have made his acquaintance?

Catherine was stupefied, and exclaimed:

"To marry me? I will never give consent."

"Your consent," replied Keller, showing her the letter, of that there is no need here."

Saying these words he rang the bell, and said to the soldier who answered his summons:

"An order from the king to the chaplain.

"A marriage to be administered in half an hour."

"Half an hour!" cried Catherine. "It is impossible!" It is wilful injury."

"When I say half an hour, perhaps a quarter will suffice." The time measured eight or ten grandees, and in choice among them of the right proportion," said he, measuring Catherine with his eye. "About five feet four or six inches.

A fair complexion to form a contrast,

"Mademoiselle," continued he, with a military salute, "shall be at your service in a few minutes."

Presently Keller returned, holding a paper in his hand.

"I have found your man," said he; "and you are to sign this promise of marriage with him for the chaplain, as the law requires the consent of both parties."

Catherine, recovering from her dizziness, exclaimed:

"Consent! Ah! this paper will be signed."

"I will accept half," replied Catherine, quickly, "we shall thus both have a dowry, and—who knows?—perhaps be married to-morrow."

Letter in hand, Catherine soon reached the fortress, the gates of which were opened to her at the sight of the mystic seal. She was much pleased with the deference which was paid her, and made up her mind that the stranger must have been some great personage, and that the letter contained something important. She examined it over and over again, bursting with curiosity to know the contents. She endeavored to peep into the envelope, but failed. "If I should, without knowing it, cause a scandal or a revolution!" exclaimed she. "But after all, what are the secrets of peace and war to me? The great thing is to ascertain if Albert and Ludwig are here."

The commander, a crabbish-looking old soldier who had grown grey in the service of his king and country, now entered to relieve her spouse. Having riyed off his head to foot, he said:

"One of the fairies asked for me. It was you, young girl. Here I am. What can I do for you?"

"It is Major Keller, commander at Marienburg, to whom I have the honor of speaking?"

"The same."

"I am commanded to give this letter into your hands, major," said Catherine, presenting the letter.

"From whom did you receive it?" continued he.

"From a stranger who passed down the road about an hour ago."

"Let me see," he said, starting as he recognized the seal, and taking off his hat, as a military salute.

Catherine could hardly believe her ears, so providential did this circumstance appear to her; the distress which she had experienced but a few minutes before was suddenly changed at the mention of his name, into ecstasy of joy.

"Well, then, do you still refuse?" said the major.

"I consent, major, and am ready to sign."

"Long live King Frederick!"

"All in good time, I was sure of it—I know the sex."

When he had left the room, Keller called Sergeant Hosten.

Albert (for this was the young sergeant's name), now entered, making a military salute. On perceiving the young girl, he exclaimed—Catherine, the sister of my brother! What an unexpected pleasure!

"Well, that is a dowry for a soldier!"

"Certainly—especially for a sergeant."

"But yes we have not sold me off if the fifth company of the third regiment—"

"Yes, yes, we will see about that. It is a company of picked men, measuring five feet six inches; I doubt if you find."

At words, the king's name, Albert shuddered, his arms, but on hearing the words which followed, he suddenly let his gas fall, and stood as if petrified.

"Do you understand?"

"Yes, commander," said Albert mechanically.

"A quarter of an hour is given you to become acquainted with each other, and

To the Grenadiers! Ah, well! What does it matter? You are joking commands."

"Pardon me, major, cried Albert. "Doubtless the majesty's command is to pay day—but do you understand that in a quarter of an hour?"

Catherine took the interview Right

Keller hand, and read the following—

"Order to Major Keller to choose one of the handiest men in the regiment, and to marry her to the young girl—the bearer of this dispatch."

(Signed.) "Kiss Farnham II."

"The king! It was the king! Good Heavens!"

The king himself! Are you not delighted to have made his acquaintance?

Catherine was stupefied, and exclaimed:

R. C. KELLEY & J. Y. HINCKLE & J. A. KENNEDY,
Editors and Proprietors.

God and Country, Farmers! In the name
We, and our friends, stand to the last.
To no greater honor. With the best
Our civil strife sweeps over the land.
We'll stand by you, and we'll stand
Our wall of fire to guard each star.

To Our Subscribers.

You are, no doubt, aware that conducting a newspaper is attended with considerable outlay of cash, and that in order to make it efficient as an expression of public sentiment, and a source of profit to its conductors, it is necessary that its features should pay for it promptly. We need money at this time, and appeal to you to assist us by paying up your dues. Nothing can be more encouraging to the controllers of a public journal, than the evidence of the appreciation of their patrons, afforded by keeping them in funds. We appeal to those of our subscribers who have not paid their subscriptions for the current year, to do so, as soon as they conveniently can. The amount to be paid in full in the aggregate makes a large sum, it is a matter of importance to us to have these small amounts collected.

We flatter ourselves that to publish a good paper, and that our subscribers know it, and consequently that they will generously respond to this appeal.

The Restoration of the Union.

The result of the recent elections in Pennsylvania, Ohio and Indiana is a happy one in favor of the restoration of the Union and the future happiness, prosperity and greatness of a common country. Its effect upon the Union cause in the South will be immense. Thousands of Union men in the Southern States who still love the old Government and the old flag, but who have been commanded into silence by the despotism of Jeff. Davis & Co., will hail with unmixed joy the news of their victories in the North, of conservatism and Constitutional principles over fanaticism and error. It will confirm them that the people of the free States are not all Abolitionists and that there is a hope of a reconstruction of the Union upon the broad principles of the Constitution, where the rights and privileges of all the citizens of all the States shall be respected and protected as constitutional and defined in that instrument. It will encourage them to cling to the faith which they have so long in silence cherished in their hearts, and which, through the madness and folly of those in power at Washington, may have forsaken and gone over to the enemy. It will stimulate them to active exertions in behalf of the Union when the hour of their redemption arrives and enables them, in course of time, to rally a powerful Union party in their respective States, turn the misions of Jeff Davis out of power and bring the States back into the Union through the voluntary action of their own people. This is the only feasible plan of restoring the Union and the only way in which it can be restored. Break the military power of the "Confederacy" by the strong arm of the Federal Government—the army and navy—punish the leaders, pursue a wise, moderate and conciliatory policy towards the people of the needed States, guarantee their protection in their Constitutional rights, convince them by such a course that they have been deceived and imposed upon by the leaders who precipitated this rebellion upon the country, and you can restore the Union, and yet do no other way.

Let the administration of Mr. Lincoln and others in authority, listen to the voices of the people, as well as the voice of reason and of common sense. Let them abandon the radical and unconstitutional measures which they have urged upon the country during the past year; let them change their line of policy in accordance with the course we have indicated, and be guided solely by the justice and spirit of the Constitutional guarantees of justified privilege and just and considerate and our eyes may behold but one Constitution, one country and one destiny."

All the evidence and consciousness which have been urged with so much persistency by the Abolitionists are sheer madness. Apart from their unconstitutionality they are inexpedient, and instead of tending to restore the Union, their tendency has been and must continue to be still further to widen the breach between the two hostile sections of the country and render their reunion an utter impossibility. This policy has produced evils enough already and caused the country to drink of its bitter fruits to the very dregs. It has pitted thousands against us in the South who would otherwise have been with us. It has given the pretensions of the Secessionists that the Republican party intended a war upon the Constitutional rights of the Southern people. It has made good the chief argument of the rebel leaders by which they were enabled to carry the people with them. Instead of endeavoring to convince the people of the South that they were deceived and imposed upon by their leaders, and thereby weaken their cause, our rulers at Washington pursued just the opposite course and did everything that was calculated to consolidate, strengthen and give permanence to the rebellion.

Such has been the policy of the party in power. It is high time that it were changed to a more wise, rational and fearless policy. If this be done and done quickly, we may yet hope to see our beloved country emerge from her present calamities to a future of peace, prosperity, pleasure and glory. If it be not done then we fear that the days of our country as a united nation are numbered, and we can see nothing in the future but an arid and strife ending in the total subversion of our republican institutions and the establishment of a military despotism, more despotic and arbitrary than the most tyrannical Government of Europe. Will President Lincoln take warning and save the country while timely yet he said? We sincerely hope so.

A Malignant Attack.

The semi-weekly Dispatch, the Editor and manager of which is either a knave or a fool, (in charity to him we think the latter,) published the following malignant and wanton attack on a highly respectable and aged citizen of this place:

"We have one of those old men in this town, who, it is said, is of his time, and has a mind and a taste of his own to bequeath over many an unkindred neighbor, and often even on his best friend, until he comes to be looked upon as a man whose friend ship was more dangerous than his vicinity. Never offered the smallest affront in the gift of his own party, he turned to the other, and, with a bold and impudent speech, gave an audience to the name of the country in abusing this atrocious rebellion, and by a decided purpose, he sought to annihilate the Administration in its efforts to crush treason, the Union men of Franklin county were induced to elect him to an important position. At the time of his election, he was a man who had no friends, but who was supposed to sympathize with traitors, and the name of 'The Friend' applied to cover his secret. The world was constantly on his lip. But no sooner was he publicly exposed in his new position than he commenced seeking the society of the men who had been his enemies from the beginning, and who had hitherto reviled and insulted his wife, to give countenance to the cause of the rebels he had taken to heart.

The President, too, saw his way to that post, and made his proclamation in time, to show what desperate lengths of radicalism would go in order to the beliefs of a party.

The Democrats, then, will give the call, when they are again in power and habited, but they can give no other; it is too late now to much to gratify their ambition. A monkey will do very well in some places, but not so good to keep a chimp shop.

Can we say that Democrats will not sacrifice any right of the Federal Government, nor trample on any right of a state, under the influence of a malignant and unprincipled man? Our system of Government is made up of the Federal Constitution and Federal laws, equally sacred in their own sphere, and this war is for the preservation of all.

As far as the Democratic party will have an opportunity, if not for a while, in theophilus and corruption of the past two years.

As to the war, they will reiterate their purpose and require all parties to stick to that purpose.

They will put down the rebellion in spite of the political will soon begin to oppose the rebellion. It will get them into trouble, but the will be too strong for them.

The Southern people tell me that they have lost their slaves, that the slaves of the negro and the white man was to be exchanged.

They have nothing to gain by war, and nothing to fear in abandoning the rebellion.

There is no doubt of the effect of these elections in the South. There are to-day more slaves in the South than there ever have been.

The last twelve months, a number of negroes of Union, a general conviction that the irreconcileable conflict is passed.

In our judgment, the ballot box, at the late elections, has struck the harder blow at the rebellion yet felt.

East & Western Post has written a long article on the negro question.

And, in a recent letter, from the day before yesterday, we receive,

the negro question. It is in this letter, as in our last letter, that they do best, they do best, they do best.

That cannot be best.

Wednesday Morning, Nov. 6, 1862.

Local and Personal.

Wood Wanted.

Twenty or thirty acres of good dry, heavy Wood will be taken at this office for advertising and Job Work, if delivered soon.

SCHOOL.—The District Attorney elect, W. H. Stenger, Esq., was elected by the people Monday last. His office is in Market Street, a few doors west of the Franklin Hotel.

THE 120TH REGIMENT, P. V., left the city of Pittsburgh on Thursday last and are now encamped four miles below the former's Ferry, on the Maryland side of the Potowmack.

RECOVERING.—We are pleased to announce the recovery and recuperation of the Governor and Congressmen made in our last issue. Mr. Stricker is now recovering from a long and severe illness and we hope that he may be restored to his usual health and vigor.

COCOCHEECKE RESTAURANT.—Our friends and constituents of the Goddess of Liberty, invited to one day last week, with some from Oyster, Ar. which has us over the hills. They were much delighted—the heat was very agreeable, the food and try these friends, and our meal will be well agree with us in public.

To WHOM IT MAY CONCERN.—We would inform the proprietors of a certain Post Office, not more than seven miles from this place, that if no more complaints are made by our subscribers of the non receipt of their papers, we will take no occasion to inquire particularly into the causes why they do not receive them. We have for some time suspected, though in the direct interest to do so, and are not disposed to submit to it much longer. "A word to the wise, etc."

DEATH OF A SOLDIER.—Our former townsmen, Mr. George Shattock, a member of Company D, 12th Regt., P. V., died at the Military Hospital at Sharpsburg, a few days since. He was a son of Mr. and Mrs. Shattock of Ms parents. In this place, and on Monday evening last were followed to the grave by a large concourse of relatives and friends, with a military escort. This, we believe, is the fourth death in the 12th Regiment since its organization, he died in Peace.

COURT.—Court convened on Monday the 3d inst., pursuant to adjournment, for the purpose of disposing of various petitions.

A petition was presented by C. D. Bassett, Esq., a member of the Legislature, and a citizen of the North West, of the Borough of Chambersburg, contesting the election of John Donney, Esq., as Commissioner, and allying that a number of persons voted in aid of said who were not qualified voters. T. M. Collier, Esq., was appointed commissioner to take testimony in the matter. After deposing of a number of motions, the court adjourned to meet on the 25th inst., to hold an Optical Court.

RECRUITING FOR THE ARMY.—Our friends, Captain S. W. McNamee, of the 17th and Sergeant M. W. House, of 5th Regt., P. V., have opened a recruiting station, at the Law Office of Mr. Stenger, Esq., No. 10, this place. Three Regiments have been recruited in nearly eight months, and persons enlisting in either of them will be discharged with the Regiment at the expiration of its three year term. A fine clause is thus afforded persons desiring to enlist for a short term. Those so enlisting will be entitled to the bounty offered by the Government.

CAPT. W. S. BLACK.—Our friend, Capt. W. S. Black, who was commanding Captain of Company H 10th Regt., P. V., on his nineteenth birthday, the 25th last, As Lieutenant, he was, after the death of Capt. John T. Dick, in command of the company. At the battle of South Mountain and Antietam, he acquitted himself nobly. He bears an honorable wound in remembrance of the latter. We find him on the street the other day, and were glad to learn that he is steadily improving.—Paid.

JOHN ROWE, Sr.—This gentleman, one of our old citizens, died at his residence on last Saturday night, after an illness of some days.

He was born in Ireland about the year 1803, and came to this country in 1820, since which latter period, he has been a resident of this borough. He was elected one of the Justices of the Peace, some years ago, and was serving his third term of office at the time of his death.

He was a warm hearted, true friend, and much respected by his fellow citizens.—Paid.

ADVERTISER.—ADVERTISER!—The Daily Spirit and Times has a new and enlarged edition, and is the paper published in the city.

It has an excellent list numbers nearly 2500, and is therefore the best medium of correspondence with the public. Our business men should be urged to make this the paper of record.

It is a fact which every good business man appreciates. The large and rapidly increasing circulation of the Spirit and Times affords great and cheap facilities for extending their influence, with all whom it should tell advantages of. We trust our friends will do their duty in giving it a hearty endorsement.

In supporting our advertiser, may I assure you, your better.

IMPORTANT TO BUTCHERS, AUCTIONEERS, &c.—The Commissioner of Internal Revenue has decided that under the new law less, but those who run a concern through the country, from town to town, must take out a license in each place he goes. The license fee is $100 for one and $15 for two.

It has also been decided that vendors cannot come under the head of auctioneers and must take out a license before they can advertise a single article. The cost of an auctioneer's license is $20.

Butchers who keep up produce through the country and sell it in towns or cities from their wagons must take out a particular license.

If they keep their produce to the city market, or sell them from stalls or tables, they are required to take out a dealer's license, providing their sales reach a $1000 annually.

A GROSS OUTRAGE.—The office of the Clerk of the Common Pleas was entered on the night of the 25th ultimo, by a member of the American Cavalry, who proceeded to break open the safe in the office, and to rob it of $1000. It is thought that this kind of thing was stopped.
